Work

Working as a waitress, Lynn Friend serves pop to customers at the Village Pizza Works.

Many students had jobs for many different reasons. Some needed extra cash, others were preparing for careers, and many were saving for college. Seniors had the opportunity to work on the co-op program while others found their own jobs. By working, these students were preparing for the future by gaining experience and learning if their chosen career was the correct one for them. Whether they worked for money or experience, their jobs kept them busy throughout the school year and often into the summer.

Howard Dennis polishes the floor in the hall as part of his summer cleaning job at the school.

Work

Reshelving books is part of Dottie Grant's job at the public library.

Working at the bank, Kathie Lievens checks her work with her boss to make sure she has correctly completed the deposit form.

When business is slow at the Video Jungle, Monica McKune checks the inventory of movies in stock.

One of the many jobs Doug Nuckles does at Wayne's Grocery is to run the cash register when the store is busy.

Play

Although this is a high school yearbook, some of the people may not have always acted like they were in high school. Many are still a "kid at heart". One day they might be responsible adults exercising their right to vote and another day they might be having a water balloon fight. Here we can only show a few of the many ways students played during their free time because their forms of entertainment were as varied as their personalities.

Heather Weinrich and Tadd Jeffries wait for their teammate to serve the volleyball during a noon hour tournament game.

Enjoying the sunshine, Randy Snell, Melissa Lee, Rhonda Koenigs, Jason Crapnell, Drew Allen, Jerry Miner, and Rhonda Swiger find doing nothing is the best way to relax.

Brent Gustafson shows off the new tricks he has mastered with his yo-yo.

After eating a quick lunch, Monte Bortens, Ted Dobbels, and Jason Johnson have time to play a few hands of poker.

Play

Amy Todd and Candy Kappelmgm play with the props before Oliver practice begins.

Denise Hagerman was having fun playing with a rabbit at the petting zoo before it had an accident.

At NCAA tournament time, Doug Schehl hopes he draws the winning team as Kyle Stromquist holds the box high so he can't peek.

Styles

Looking through the new pictures from J.W. Franks, Lana Stahl and Howard Dennis look like the well dressed students in their stone washed jeans and over sized shirts.

Styles change every year. What is "in" this year may be next year's garage sale item. In order to give you, the reader, a composite picture of what CHS students were wearing this year, we have compiled a collage of hair styles, shirts, glasses, jeans, and shoes for you to enjoy looking at today and remembering in years to come.

Emily Montgomery makes a fashion statement with her new shirt and hair style.

Waiting for the concert to begin, Jeremy Hepner is fashionably correct in his Blue Zone sweater and jeans.

Styles

With the arrival of spring, comes shorts and suntan season. This year saw the return of longer shorts and denim shorts with cuffs. When the first warm days arrived, students sat on the front walk at noon to start the summer tans.

When students got dressed up for dances, like Homecoming, the girls wore any length skirt that pleased them. Shoes were usually flat rather than heels. Sweaters and slacks were popular with the boys as they, too, were looking for comfort.

As you can see from this picture of the tug-of-war, jeans were worn tight at the bottom, rolled above the ankle, and socks disappeared from many students wardrobes.

Lockers

Looking for a lost library book, Sandy Spilker cleans out her locker before school.

Using lockers for a back rest, Chad Hart watches as Cory Lange finishes his English assignment.

A student's locker at CHS became a home away from home. Both girls and boys decorated the insides and outsides of their lockers with pictures, shelves, carpet, and even contact paper. Their locker reflected their interests and personality. Some lockers were kept clean and neat, while others had so many books and papers stuffed in them the door had to be kicked closed.

Students had several favorite places to eat lunch. Most of them are in the cafeteria, but some went uptown to buy their lunch, or went home to eat. The students who brought their own lunch could be found in hallways, the lobby, or sometimes even the locker room.

Lunch

With only a half hour for lunch, Doug Schehl makes a fast trip to the Kwik Shop for lunch.

Instead of eating in the cafeteria, Ryan Hanson and Robbie Knox go home for lunch.

Looking at the 88 yearbook, Heather Weinrich eats lunch in the front lobby on picture day.

Working at the portable serving line, Corrie Blank adds dessert to Chris Schehl's lunch plate.

Phone

The telephone is indispensable to teens. Over the past year, it was used for keeping up on the latest gossip, doing homework, and getting dates. Many lucky students either got a phone for their room or their own telephone line.

A student's room is his own domain. At times it has been spotlessly clean, but often it has been a disaster area with chips, pop cans, clothes, magazines, records, tapes, papers, and books everywhere.

Using her own personal phone, Amy Strout rests on her bed while talking to one of her friends.

On Saturday morning, Keri Taylor begins cleaning her room by making her bed.

Office handyman, Darin Ries answers the phone when both secretaries are busy.

Realizing that he forgot his homework, Marcus Knueppel calls home to ask his mother to bring it to him as soon as possible.

Room

Sometimes a student's room can be a real challenge on cleaning day, but as the top photo shows it is possible to restore order. (Names of the owners are withheld by request.)

In Nashville, Mrs. Linda Roehrs and varsity cheerleaders, Lana Stahl, Kelli Swanson, and Angie Bates wait in their hotel room until it is time to leave for the competition.

Drive

A brave Blake Reed rides his motorcycle to school on a chilly spring morning.

In a survey we took, we asked students what they thought was best about having or getting their licenses. Here are some of their responses:

"I can go where I want and when I want without waiting for someone to take me." — Rachael Vinavich

"Freedom!" — Tammie Britt

Not yet able to drive, Monte Bottens and Mindy Marson have to get to school by riding the bus.

As you can see by the full parking lot, driving ones own vehicle to school is the most popular way of arriving.

Drive

While waiting for Mr. Herges, student driver Kindra Whitehair prepares to turn the car around.

"You can do what you want." — -Curt DeSplinter

"Getting away from parents." — -Tina Cross

"You don't have to have your parents cart you around." — -Darren DeKezel

"Going out on dates." — -Nathan Stone

Ami Hart, Tami Walline, Viki Walline, Angie Gibson, Lisa Murdock, and Angie Mettler wait for the long ride to cheerleading camp.

Compete

Competitions were a large part of many activities and involved everyone. Cheerleaders, pom-pom girls, FFA, band and chorus members were all in competitions. This, in addition to the large number of students who competed on athletic teams. Another kind of competition that involved all students was scholastic. They competed not only for grade point averages and class rankings, but also on achievement tests and college entrance exams.

Mr. Don Mungerson administers the state achievement test to the juniors.

Rachael Vinavich and Candy Kappelman put their instruments together to tune up before competing at the band contest.

The j-v cheerleaders, Angela Erickson, Laura VanMeenen, Amy Dobbels, Beth VanMeenen, Kim Brennan, and Amy Strout proudly display the trophy they won at a competition in Peoria.

Deyonne Lindbeck concentrates on her music as the percussion ensemble competes at the state contest.

The FFA officers and judging team display all the trophies and ribbons they won this year.

Breaks

Jason Barman and Mr. Darryl Taylor pose for photographer, Andy Patterson, as they await their flight home after spending a week in Washington, D.C.

On an industrial arts field trip, Todd Jeffries, Mr. Robert VonWojcik, and Blake Reed listen to the cabinet maker.

Doug Schehl and Darren McDonough get a break from the day's schedule to go vote in their first presidential election.

On college and career day, Randy Snell and Cary Miller not only enjoy the break from classes, but also get valuable information for planning their future schedules.

Entertain

Almost every student entertained someone in the community this school year. The band and chorus entertained at open house and football fans enjoyed the marching band at every home game. At Christmas, the chorus and Spanish classes went to the grade school to present special numbers. Also, during the year, pre-schoolers were entertained by the child care class, the primary grades were invited to a petting zoo, the pep band entertained at basketball intermissions, and students were frequently called upon to perform for civic organizations. Yes, we are entertainers!

Crystal Robinson, has one last rehearsal before going to the grade school to sing Christmas songs in Spanish.

Brent Haverback entertains and educates the kindergarten class by letting them pet one of the baby piglets born and raised in the ag shop.

Preparing to entertain parents and FFA sponsors, Dan Nimrick sets the tables for the annual banquet.

Entertain

Dressed as a bah-humbug, Amy Stout entertains at the grade school while the chorus puts on a special Christmas performance.

Before the varsity boys basketball game begins, the pep band plays the school song.

Performing in their new dance costumes, Rhonda Morris and Tammy Pearson entertain the parents night crowd.

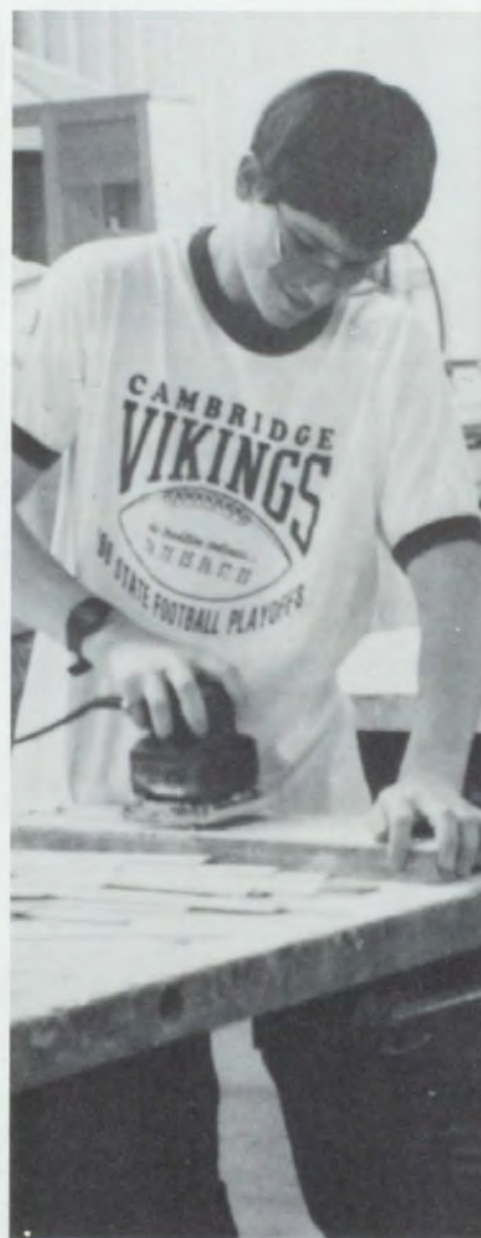

From high in the rafters of Wharton Field House, the Cambridge band entertains fans at a Quad Cities Thunder game.

Study

Freshmen Debbie Baylor and Denise Rannow concentrate on keeping straight and even seams on their first sewing project.

Studying for a government test during second hour study hall, Dottie Grant and Travis Schnowske compare notes.

Andy Patterson, Jason Barman, and Devin Wells combine their ideas to solve the mystery of what is under the microscope.

Becky Swiger finds a quiet corner of the library to work on her geometry assignment.

Working with one of the new sanders in the industrial arts department, Chris Dobbels prepares piece of wood for his project.

Study

During the school year studying took many forms. In some classes memorization of facts and theorems was necessary, while in other classes learning was accomplished through experimentation and do-it-yourself projects. Yet others required repetition of skills or listening and observing. No matter what classes students chose, they all found that study became an important part of their school days.

In art class, Travis Stackhouse works carefully as he shapes and molds his clay sculpture.

During activity period, Cherri Neumann, Dawn Knueppel, and Corrie Blank sit on the gym floor and try to study for their English test.

Tony Hahn, Scott Miller, and Brian Witt take a peek at each others answers when they work their pre-algebra problems at the chalkboard.

The 1988 Varsity Football team is one that will long be remembered. Their outstanding season brought the school and town together. Their desire and intensity attracted many spectators and their play was never a letdown. The undeniable speed of the running backs and the hard hitting sturdiness of the linemen led them to a #1 state ranking. They finished the year with a 9-1 record and were 6-0 for an undefeated Lincoln Trail conference crown. For the fourth year in a row they qualified for the Class 1A Playoffs, where they lost by 1 point to an undefeated Annawan squad in the opening game. The Vikings dominated the all-conference offensive team this year with 6 first team picks: Howard Dennis, Doug Schehl, Blake Reed, Bryce Reed, Terry Anderson, and kicker Andy Patterson. Three Vikings were named to the first team defense: Darren McDonough, Derick Hicks, and Bryce Reed while three more players received honorable mention: Travis Schnowske, Terry Anderson, and Corey Schmoll.

Speedy running back, Terry Anderson, escapes the defense for another easy touchdown during the homecoming rout of the Alwood Aces.

Using his strength and speed, Howard Dennis sweeps around end for another first down against the Princeville team in a pre-season game.

The Vikings leading rusher and all-conference back, Bryce Reed, turns on the speed to escape the attack of the opposing lineman as Andy Patterson prepares to clear the way for him with a block.

While stretching out his muscles in pre-game calisthenics, all-conference lineman Derick Hicks, contemplates his task in the coming game.

Before their first conference game begins, the starting team gathers at the center of the field for one last word of encouragement.

In the Wethersfield game, Kurt Gustafson holds as Corey Lindbeck kicks the extra point making the score 14-0.

Football practice began for the j-v team in the midst of one of the hottest summers in memory. In spite of the heat, they survived two-a-day practices and were ready to face their first opponent - Orion - when they came to town. The Vikings followed this victory with wins over Wyaner and Galva before losing their first conference game in several years to Alwood in two overtimes. After this disappointing loss, they came back to win their next two games. The season ended with losses to two of the conference leaders.

Thad Boberg, the teams leading rusher and scorer, successfully evades the defense for a touchdown against Wyaner.

started strong but were unable to maintain their intensity. With hard work and freshmen who were gaining experience, the girls were able to finish the season with a 7-8 record.

The old saying that "it isn't important if you win or lose, but how you play the game", was very true of this year's volleyball team. While their win-loss record was not impressive, their spirit, co-operation, and positive attitudes toward each other and their coach were highly praised by all who watched them during the season. Coach Swanson said that this team was one of the most enjoyable that she has worked with. When problems arose, they were able to sit down and discuss them and come to decisions that were acceptable to all. When victory was theirs, they could all share equally in the feeling of accomplishment. On the other hand, when the scores went against them, they would all accept their share in the loss without accusing or blaming others. This is the true meaning of the word team and this year's varsity team was truly a winning team.

Angela Holliday lunges and saves the ball with a perfect bump set for the front line to spike during the parents' night game.

Riverdale 4 of 18

Sectional 5 of 12

The girls golf team this year was made up entirely of seniors, two of whom were playing competitive golf for the first time. While their record wasn't good, they did beat UTHS, a much larger school.

The boys team had one of its most successful seasons. Although the junior varsity team record was 2-10, they played more matches than ever before and benefited from the participation. The varsity's dual meet record was 12-5, and in tournament play they recorded some of the best scores ever. They were the first team ever to qualify for the sectional tournament and missed going on to state by three strokes.

Chad Nelson and Keith Gradert complete play on hole nine during a practice round at Valley View Club.

Before practice begins, Paula Striner uses the practice green to work on her putting.

Knox & Hanson Go To State

Ryan Hanson, junior, and Rob Knox, sophomore, both qualified to advance to the State Final Tournament in Danville. These two were the first Cambridge boys ever to reach the state finals competition. Ryan shot 84 at regionals to qualify for the sectionals where his score of 75 not only qualified him for state but was also the lowest score ever recorded by a Cambridge junior. Rob's scores of 76 and 79 at the regional and sectional tourneys qualified him for the state tournament also.

It takes many hours of practice to keep a position on the varsity squad, so Rob Ries and Chris Schehl work on keeping their drives straight and long.

Denise Hagerman tries to remember everything her coach told her before gently stroking the ball into the hole.

Cheerleaders

WRESTLING CHEERLEADERS: Lisa Murdock, Ami Hart, Viki Walline, Angie Mettler, and Tami Walline.

During the state play off game, all the cheerleaders work together to lead the overflow crowd in cheering on the Vikings in their battle with Annawan.

Cheerleading advisor, Mrs. Linda Roehrs and Monica McKune exchange thanks for four great years after the spring athletic banquet.

The varsity cheerleaders show off the ribbons they won at camp which qualified them to compete in the IOCC finals at Nashville.

Before the varsity game begins, the j-v and varsity cheerleaders combine to form a giant pyramid at the end of the school song.

Wrestling cheerleaders, Lisa Murdock, Angie Mettler, Tami Walline, and Viki Walline take a break between matches at the Viking Classic.

After school, Beth VanMeenen makes a huge banner for the jv football team.

After spending most of the night making posters and decorating the school for spirit week, the cheerleaders catch a little sleep on the home ec room floor.

Rob Knox and Travis Stackhouse blockout the opponents as they await a possible rebound from Corey Lindbeck's three-point attempt.

Guard, Brent Gustafson dribbles around a Trojan as he brings the ball up the floor in third quarter action.

The team gathers around Coach Darryl Taylor to listen to his strategy.

The fourteen boys who made up this year's team worked hard all season and did, in the words of their coach, "a fine job of promoting athletic sportsmanship and combining this with much appreciated desire and intensity to play the game." While their season record of 7-15 is not a winning record, each of the members of the team feels that he has become a better person and basketball player as a result of his experiences and looks forward to proving it next year.

Escaping the defense's trap, Howard Dennis brings the ball up court during the final seconds of the third quarter. Taking advantage of a late game lead, Blake Reed takes his time setting up the offense during a home game.

The varsity basketball team started slowly, but once they got the feel of playing together, they were almost unstoppable. Their overall record was 14-11 and their conference record was 10-2 which tied them for first place with Wethersfield.

The Vikings had many close games during the season. They would often fall behind but in the the last few minutes would pull together and win. They will be remembered for their unpredictable style of play. It didn't always look completely organized, but it was effective. Their enjoyment of the game and playing together was also contagious for the fans who watched them.

During time out in a close game with conference co-champions Wethersfield, Coach J.C. Wise explains exactly what he wants each member of the team to do during the final seconds.

All conference forward, Darren McDonough goes straight up to shoot high above the defensive pressure.

Carefully eyeing the basket, Andy Patterson takes a shot from the side during pre-game warm-ups.

The Trojan defender is unable to stop Ryan Hanson as he goes up for a shot from the free throw line.

Lisa Gargano finds it very difficult to escape the trap of the Lady Geese.

During a time-out, the team listens intently as Coach Bob Schumaker explains the play he has diagrammed.

Pansie Sutliff rips down a rebound as teammates Darcy Roehrs and Mindy Matson block out the Toulon players.

Following through with the release of her free throw, Pansie Sutliff insures the team of another point.

Looking for an open player, Mindy Matson, makes a quick change of direction.

Darcy Roehrs keeps her eye on the basket as she shoots from out side the free throw circle.

The 1988-89 girls basketball team faced many challenges as they began practice. First, with only four seniors and one junior returning to the team they had to recruit four sophomores and two freshmen to join them. Secondly, the returning players were facing a new experience - a new coach. However everyone adjusted and found that the court was never dull. Even though both coach and players gave their all, they ended the season with a losing record. Yet the seniors are leaving with many pleasant memories and the underclassmen are saying "wait until next year."

JV GIRLS BASKETBALL TEAM: Coach Julie Tornquist, Cherri Neumann, Dawn Knueppel, Amanda DeLellis, Amy Todd, Amy Stout, Angie

Gibson, Keri Taylor, Tami Walline, and Becky Swiger

Amy Todd holds her defensive position against a possible charge.

Completing another successful steal and drive, Becky Swiger lays the ball up for an easy two points.

As point guard Cherri Neumann brings the ball up court, she studies the defense and looks for an opening.

There were many factors that lead to a long and difficult season for the j.v. girls basketball team. First, several of their experienced players were moved to the varsity team. Second, the girls found that they were much shorter than most of their competition. Third, the team lacked the depth to give them a rest during close games. In spite of these problems, most of the girls enjoyed their experiences and are hoping that next year their struggles will pay off with more victories.

Wrestlers Struggle Against Difficult Competition

Standing proudly atop the victors stand, Curt DeSplinter enjoys his first tournament championship.

Starting the final period of their match, Chris Dobbels and his opponent await the referee's signal to begin.

Jason Dobbels has the advantage over his opponent but finds it difficult to get him turned over for a pin.

Providing senior leadership, Kyle Stromquist uses his strength and conditioning to remain on his feet.

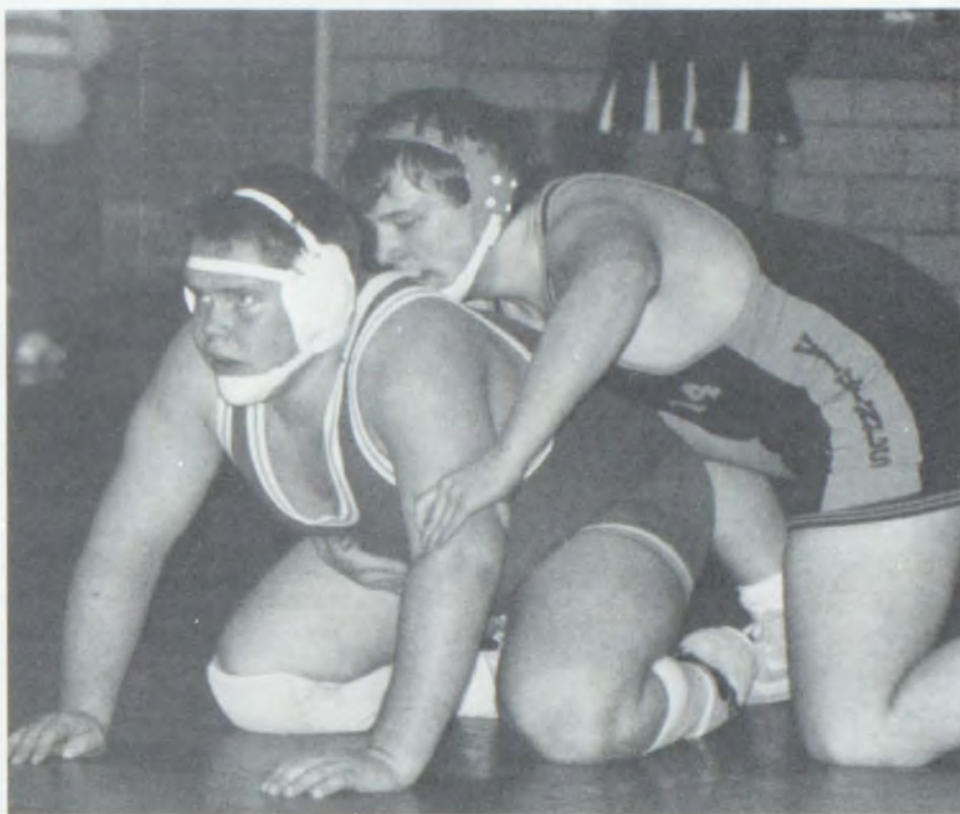

Victory belongs to Brady Stromquist after successfully pinning conference rival Galva.

Doug Schehl gets positioned for the second period of his match with the Dixon heavyweight wrestler.

Doug Nuckles proudly escorts his mother to the center of the gym on parents night.

Killing time between weigh-in and the start of matches Chad Hart, Kyle Stromquist, Doug Schehl, Doug Nuckles and Brent Hasson enjoy a game of cards.

When the wrestling team had a chance to participate in meets with schools of comparable size, they were competitive as is shown by their high placing in the Green Valley tournament. With new weight classes this year, the team was able to compete in all thirteen classes. Many wrestlers did well. Thirteen team members placed in tournaments throughout the season with one wrestler, Doug Nuckles, placing third at the regional meet. While the Viking team will be losing the valuable leadership of four seniors, they are looking forward to next year when a large group of experienced underclassmen return. By continuing to emphasize the team concept, it is the desire of next year's team to remain competitive and wrestle more schools from Central Illinois where school enrollments are comparable to CHS.

The boy's track team completed another successful year by winning the Lincoln Trail Conference championship for the fourth consecutive year and also repeating as champs at the Alwood Relays. Darren McDonough set a new school and Alwood Relay record with a high jump of 6'6 3/4" and qualified for the state meet for the third straight year. With the graduation of seven seniors, the team will be lacking in overall strength and depth next year. Yet with a third place finish at the f-s conference meet, there are some very talented individuals who will be returning.

The girl's track team this year was a very young team with only two seniors and five juniors participating. This was a year when the Lady Vikings found themselves consistently in fourth place - at the Viking Relays, Sherrard Relays, and again at the conference meet. The highlight of the year was having two freshmen, Becky Swiger in the long jump and Amy Todd in the high jump, qualify for the state meet. This was the first time a Cambridge freshman has qualified. These two outstanding freshmen were joined by three others and won the Alwood Freshmen Tournament and set six new records there. One of the greatest disappointments of the season came at the district meet when senior, Holly Drescher, missed qualifying for state in the discus by just one inch. With all but two team members returning next year, they hope to improve on their fourth place finishes, set new school records, and send more girls to state.

Terry Anderson is set in the blocks and awaits the starters gun to get a clean start in the 800 meter relay.

Taking his final strides to victory, Lance Noble leans for the finish line.

While waiting for their events to begin, Lana Strahl and Angie Polowy try to keep warm on a very cold day.

Sixth place state finisher, senior Darren McDonough easily completes a jump of 6'2".

At a dual meet with Orion, freshman long jumper Becky Swiger jumps into first place with her leap of 14'7".

Before the competition starts, senior Holly Drescher gets in a few practice throws.

Freshman high jumper, Amy Todd arches her back to successfully complete a jump of 5'2".

Vikings go Back to the Monday, September 26 marked the beginning of a fun-filled week as the students of CHS came to school in their pajamas for the first day of Spirit Week. The noon hour was exciting as classes tried to build the best pyramid. On Tuesday, everyone followed the theme of Punk and Pin Day. There were lots of laughs as the noon hour caught the attention of almost everyone as they gathered together to cheer on their classmates in the noon hour relays. Although Wednesday's weather did not match the beach theme, students still dressed appropriately and participated in the noon hour volleyball competition. Thursday, boys and girls switched roles for a day. While the girls found no problem in dressing like a boy, most boys were reluctant to dress like a girl. Senior, Derick Hicks easily found little competition as he won the pie eating contest.

Putting the finishing touches on the junior class float, Karl Hulin measures for the bottom skirt.

Kayleen Cross and Ronnie Cross switch roles for Reversal Day.

Juniors, Tanya Vanwysberghe, Lisa Gargano, and Kelli Swanson compete for their class in the noon hour football toss.

Beach

The bonfire that night was filled with excitement as everyone got fired up. The cheerleaders convinced many unwilling football players to find out just who was Mr. Cool by sitting on a block of ice. The crowd watched as the blindfolded players were trying to guess which cheerleader they were kissing, little did they know it was their moms. Following this, the court was announced, then the fire started. Then the players walked to the center of the field with their spirit candles lit. On Friday, to show their school spirit, students came dressed in maroon and white, as they anxiously awaited the big game and dance. On Saturday morning the parade came and so did the rain. The freshmen float won first with their shark swimming through the streets.

The freshman class float wins the homecoming float competition with its giant animated "Jaws".

Student Council President, Paula Stiner presents the attendant sash to Monica McKune.

Amy Stout and Alice Montgomery play "Tequila", while marching down Prospect Street.

The Vikings Mark Their Success

As Terry Anderson holds, Andy Patterson kicks the ball for the extra point after a Viking touchdown.

As the big day continued, game time finally arrived and the bleachers were filled with loyal fans. The cheerleaders found little trouble arousing spirit, for it was found everywhere. Halftime brought the band onto the field, which intensified the excitement. Confetti and the school song filled the air everytime the Vikings made a touchdown. The Vikings found no problems in taking charge of the Aces early in the game. The final score was Cambridge - 50, Alwood - 8. The Homecoming dance was an appropriate end to a memorable day. It began at 8 p.m. with the band Summer Breeze performing latest rock and roll hits. The Industrial Arts class contributed many decorations for the dance. The coronation began at 9 p.m. with Travis Schnowske and Rhonda Morris reigning over the court and Terry Anderson and Denise Hagerman, Lord and Lady. The rest of the court consisted of: Pansie Surliff and Kyle Stromquist, Deyonne Lindbeck and Howard Dennis, Monica McKune and Mark Humphrey. The dance ended at 11 p.m., which also ended a week of fun-filled Homecoming memories.

The fighting Viking defense gets ready to stop another Alwood charge.

Running with the ball, Terry Anderson gains several yards for the Vikings.

The FHA and FFA members were very busy as they prepared for the winter formal dance. Everyone worked together Friday night and Saturday morning to put up the silver, purple, and teal decorations. Flashing white lights announcing the theme "Puttin' On The Ritz" greeted the couples as they entered the main lobby. CHS students and their dates danced to the latest hits played by Zach Taylor, a D.J. from the radio station Power 98.9. The coronation was held at 9:30 p.m., when Travis Schnowske and Rhonda Lindbeck were crowned king and queen. As in past years, they had been chosen by the FHA and FFA clubs from their active members.

POWER 98.9 DJ Returns

This year the Sadie Hawkins dance was held at the Grade School because of the musical scenery in the High School gym. Weeks, maybe months, earlier girls looked forward to this dance. It was their chance to ask out their favorite guy. Whether the girls took their dates to Har-dees or Showbiz, it turned out to be a wonderful night. The music was supplied by a Power 98.9 DJ. He played the latest hits the students requested and they danced all night to their favorite up-beat songs. A slow song brought an end to a perfect evening for many couples.

Bill Charlet has quite a lead on his date as he tries to escape on the balance beam.

FFA Project Brings Pigs to School

The Cambridge Future Farmers of America had a very successful year. The livestock judging team participated in 8 contests and received 8 first places overall. They judged and defeated a total of 83 classes, 195 teams and 940 individuals. The ag class purchased a bred gilt, which gave birth to 11 piglets on Saturday, January 21, during a home basketball game. The ag classes were totally responsible for the care and weaning of the piglets. To raise money for Chris Frisk, an FFA member injured in a serious accident, the students participated in a "kiss the pig contest," which was broadcast over WLLR. The idea was to place money in cans designated for each teacher. Mrs. Bayless was the lucky winner, even though she was more than willing to kiss the pig. They ended the year with a first place soil judging team and parliamentary procedure team. The last event held was the annual petting zoo on Wednesday, May 17.

Winning awards for service and scholarship were: (Front row) Chris Dobbels, Monte Bortens, Rick Dobbels, (Back row) Mark Hoge, Blake Reed, Troy Coziahr, and Devin Wells.

Brent Haverback checks the meat for the banquet to see that it is roasting evenly.

Nominated by the students, Mrs. Adelle Bayless tries to figure out the best way to kiss a squealing pig.

FHA Entertains Moms Shut-ins & Students

The FHA activities began with a freshman welcome party. Everyone drank kool-aid and ate cookies as Mrs. Rumley explained the upcoming events of the year. The first major project was the annual tour of homes which is the only money making project of the year. Other activities included Christmas caroling, planning and decorating for the winter formal and Sadie Hawkins dances, the trip to Peoria, and Mother-Daughter banquet. For the FHA trip, members of the organization toured a Victorian home in Peoria. The trip also included a short shopping trip to the mall and a visit to Bradley college to learn more about their Home Ec Department. The last event of the year was the Mother-Daughter banquet at the Deck in Geneseo. After dinner, there was a style show with junior and senior members modeling clothes from Stuarts in Southpark. The evening ended with the installation of next year's officers.

After school on Friday, Lana Strahl starts working on the lobby decorations for the winter formal.

At the Mother-Daughter banquet, Teresa Hughes and Deyonne Lindbeck model suits from Stuarts in Southpark.

At the FHA Section 2-C rally, Rhonda Lindbeck (right), local president, is elected section secretary.

Serving as hostesses, Emily Montgomery and Danyelle Schnowske collect tickets and give directions to visitors during the tour of homes.

Enjoying the warmth of the home ec room and the hot chocolate, Mrs. Rumley and the FHA girls relax and visit after their annual caroling of shut-ins at Christmas.

Drinking and Driving Don't Mix

Is SADD Theme

The SADD members participated in many activities this year. Making posters, attending meetings, marching in parades, and meeting with all of the SADD members in the area were just a few things. The idea that drinking and driving don't mix was expressed with posters and t-shirts. Assemblies were also held to make the students aware of the many problems that have been caused by drinking and driving. The Explosonic Rockers were the main attraction at one of the assemblies. They had a very exciting way of getting their point across. The SADD convention was attended and sponsored by most of the SADD members. Speakers attending the convention presented very interesting thoughts and experiences for discussion.

At a noon hour meeting, Amber Whitehair, Tanya VanWynsberghe and Heather Grant help plan the conference.

During a SADD meeting, Miss Julie Tornquist, advisor, discusses the latest issues.

At the SAD conference, Kim Brennan and Amy Strout take a lunch break and eat some Pizza Hut pizza.

SADD MEMBERS: Amy Dobbels, Tanya VanWynsberghe, Kim Franck, Lola Holliday, Tami Walline, Julie Tornquist, Kayleen Cross, Alice Montgomery, Amber Whitehair, Candy Kappelman, Janet Bainbridge, Lana Strahl, Lisa Gargano, Beth VanMeenen, Heather Grant, Kelli Swanson, Lisa Murdock, Darcy Roehrs, Danyelle Schnowske, Krista Franck, Emily Montgomery, and Kindra Whitehair.

Mrs. Bayless Bid Farewell and

With the hectic May schedule, Mus-Art had to be moved from Sunday afternoon to Tuesday night. Following tradition, the art display in the cafeteria was open an hour before the concert began. After enjoying the projects of Mrs. Youngstrom's junior and senior high school students, the crowd moved to the gym. There the band performed first. Their program included a special number by guest conductor, Mike McCoy. Following intermission, the chorus sang their last concert under the direction of Mrs. Bayless. As a special tribute, Sue Ogilvie Yarger, a former student, returned to sing the title song from the musical, Sound of Music.

As special intermission entertainment, Jason Crapnell, Darren McDonough, and Mike Leander play and sing "Paradise".

Before the music portion of the program begins, parents and students enjoy browsing the various forms of student art on display in the cafeteria.

Seniors Honored at Mus-Art

Another special feature is Candy Kappelman and Holly Drescher playing the flute duet that won them a superior rating at contest.

On behalf of the seniors, Heather Grant presents Mrs. Adelle Bayless a farewell gift in appreciation of the many things she has done for them.

Mr. Mark Swendsen directs the band in their final number, a stirring rendition of the "1812 Overture".

Saying good-bye after seven years in band, Holly Drescher receives the John Phillip Souza award and a hug from director, Mr. Swendsen.

Chorus

Sends Two To State

The first performances of the year were open house and the Christmas Concert. It took the dedicated work of Mrs. Bayless, Mrs. Daniels, student teacher, and the chorus to pull off these concerts with so little practice time. Also in the fall, talented vocalists, Teresa Hughes and Robbie Swanson, were selected to sing in the state chorus. During the second semester the chorus members were busy preparing for contest and rehearsing for Oliver. Even though the Oliver cast was small, it took the hard work of all to present the musical in April. The last event of the year was Mus-Art. After auditions, chorus members were chosen to perform special numbers.

The chorus presents a special Christmas concert at the elementary building.

Band Plays

New Music, Places

The Marching Band had a long season this year. They competed at U of I and the Kewanee Hog Festival and performed half time shows at home football games, ending with the playoffs and a senior salute to Mr. Swendsen. After football season, it was time for pep and concert bands. Mr. Swendsen organized a group of 10 students, who played the synthesizer, keyboard, and electric drums at girls games. Therefore the band had time to learn new and fun music to play at boys basketball games and also for the Quad City Thunder game. Besides playing for basketball games, the band performed at the Christmas concert, spring concert, festival, and Mus-Art.

On Parent's Night, seniors Tina Cross, Tracy Greenhagen, Rhonda Morris, Pansie Sutliff, and Melissa Lee show off their new dance uniforms to the crowd.

The Pom Pon Squad started off their year by going to NCA pom camp at ISU once again. Their new captains Deyonne Lindbeck, Greta Johnson, and Tresa Wiley took control and led the squad while they learned many new and exciting routines for their season to come. After pom camp was over, the squad started working on a new project. They decided they wanted a new "in" dance look. The girls brought in swatches of material, different outfits, and magazine ideas. They finally decided on hot pink skirts and black leotards for the top with a black and white belt. The girls spent many hours selecting these outfits and had many problems agreeing. But after the first time they wore them, the girls found out it really was worth the time spent. The crowd loved them! The new uniform was the main project of the season and the cake raffle fund really helped out. Not much money was left at the end of the year from the new uniforms but the squad was still able to go for their annual pizza party. The girls had a wonderful time and realized this had been their best year yet.

Greta Johnson and Emily Montgomery busily write down names for the cake raffle fund.

At the end of the pom routine "Don't Be Cruel", Tammy Pearson, Lisa Gargano, Alice Montgomery, Kindra Whitehair, and Candy Kappelman throw their pom-poms out into the crowd.

For the body rock routine "Do the Dance", the squad shows off their high kicks while wearing uniforms from summer pom camp.

Alice Montgomery, Rhonda Morris, and Tracy Greenhagen show their stuff while wearing their new uniforms for the first time in the routine "American Soviet".

New members selected to the Cambridge Chapter are Danyelle Schnowske, Jan Hutchinson, Nathan Stone, Kindra Whitehair, Krista Franck, and Howard Dennis.

Eight students have been selected to be members of the National Art Honor Society based upon their scholarship, service, and character involving art. Their first meeting and election of officers was January 25. Co-presidents elected were Amber Whitehair and Rhonda Morris. The purposes of this chapter are to inspire and recognize students who have shown outstanding ability and dedication to art. The students chosen have at least 90% in advanced art and meet the other requirements. An induction ceremony was held February 21 at Spudley's. Guest speaker, Linda Holden told of her career and art experiences. Cambridge's group sold candy bars and worked food stands to earn money for their trip to the Chicago Art Institute, and attend a stage play.

Howard Dennis, senior member, congratulates new junior members, Kurt Gustafson, and Ryan Hanson after their installation into NHS.

This year the National Honor Society was lead by President Kyle Stromquist, Vice-president Tadd Jeffries, and Secretary-Treasurer Terry Anderson. The group consisted of 22 members who were joined by 19 new members at the annual installation ceremony held at the Deck on April 4. The speaker that evening was assistant regional superintendent, Mr. Bruce Dennison. Following his speech, Terry Anderson, Tadd Jeffries, Mark Humphrey, and Tracy Greenhagen explained the four goals of the National Honor Society and Mr. Robert Nordstrom, chapter advisor, presented awards to the members. Later that week, the members were again rewarded for their achievements when the Rotary honored them at a noon luncheon.

Viking Staff '89

This year the staff consisted of six seniors, two juniors, two sophomores, two freshmen, and one Apple computer. Even though we had so many people, it was still difficult to make our deadlines. Our new publishing company, Walsworth, gave us an added incentive to work harder by promising us a pizza party if we completed all our deadlines on time. The newest member, the computer, helped us in many ways. It corrected our mistakes and made the whole yearbook easier to complete. We hope that we have shown the mark of every Viking throughout this yearbook.

'89

This year's senior class was a class with a considerable amount of talent in everything they did. There weren't just a few people who excelled; everyone did. The special academic and citizenship awards given at the end of the year were given to a total of sixteen different individuals and twenty-one members of the class were elected to the National Honor Society. Besides excelling academically, the class of '89 will be remembered as the class that lead Cambridge to championships in football, basketball, and track, something that had never been done before in the Lincoln Trail Conference. The over-all strength of the senior class is reflected in the fact that about seventy-five per cent are planning to continue their education.

Before lining up to go to the bowl, Kathie Lievens and Jodi Darnell listen attentively to last minute directions.

The fifty members of the junior class were very active in all sports and activities. In and out of school they found many ways to keep busy. At the beginning of the year, most juniors helped plan and build their Homecoming float, which placed second at the parade.

As is traditional, the junior class planned Prom this year. To earn money, the parents helped by cooking and serving pork chop sandwiches at the home football games and a complete dinner on homecoming day between the parade and the game. Throughout the year the class had several meetings to plan and organize for the perfect Prom. Over the summer the Prom committee, along with Mr. Caras, attempted to find the perfect place for Prom. They selected the Holiday Inn in Moline for the banquet and dance, hired a band, and rented the Moline Y for the after prom party.

The junior class looks forward to becoming seniors next year with mixed emotions. They all know that it means their days at C.H.S. are nearing completion and they will have to start making some decisions as to what they will do in the future.

Class Experiments Challenge Freshmen

The first day of school for some of the freshmen was a hectic one, rushing to find classes before the second bell. For the girls of the freshmen class it would be a day to remember how embarrassing it was wearing their pajamas to school. But after a few days the freshmen were starting to feel at home.

The freshmen proved that being a small class doesn't mean you have to think small. They thought big when it came to Homecoming. The class float won with the theme "First came Jaws, then the Vikings."

Also in the fall the freshmen class found themselves busy with organizations and other activities. Sixty-seven percent of them were involved in sports.

With the arrival of spring and track season, at the end of the year, all the freshmen were looking forward to becoming Sophomores next fall and having someone else be low man on the totem pole.

Administration and Staff

Our new school nurse, Mrs. Stromquist, graduated from Cambridge High School and Moline Lutheran Hospital School of Nursing. After completing her schooling she worked for Hammond Henry Hospital part time for two years and full time for one year. Then she to worked at Family Medical before coming to work at Cambridge Schools, where she hopes to be for a long time. She enjoys being with the kids and the many school activities, and said, "It's just like going back to school again."

We'd also like to thank Mrs. Stromquist for taking so many pictures for the Viking Staff and helping us show how Vikings made their mark this year.

and Science

Mr. Bob Nordstrom, after 33 years of teaching, is going to be semi-retired. Next year, he will be returning to CHS the first two hours to teach Algebra II and Math 4. He is an excellent teacher who takes his work very seriously and doesn't expect anything in return for his help except a well educated mind. We on the Viking staff thank you, Mr. Nordstrom for your efforts to leave a permanent mark on the minds of your students by challenging them to be their best.

English and Social Studies

Mr. Carl Goff began teaching twenty-two years ago. After six years, he came to CHS where he has been teaching and coaching since then. His enjoyment of his subject and understanding of high school students and their feelings have made Mr. Goff one of the most popular teachers at CHS. Therefore, the Viking staff takes this opportunity to say "thanks" for the mark you have made on our lives.

Vocational, Music, and Fine Arts

Mrs. Adelle Bayless is leaving the Cambridge schools after being choral director for both the elementary and high schools for twenty years. She will long be remembered for starting the tradition of presenting a major musical play every spring. Each year she seemed to accomplish the impossible by making that year's production bigger and better than those of previous years.

We on the Viking staff wish Mrs. Bayless happiness in the future knowing that her mark will remain with us always.

Another person who will be missed by all at CHS is Gladys Nimrick. After many years in the cafeteria kitchen, she too is retiring. The lunch line just won't seem the same next year when her smiling face is not there.

After school Buddy Carey cleans a junior high classroom and gets it ready for the next day.

Randy Swanson goes to work removing snow from the parking lot before the students arrive.

To all Vikings:

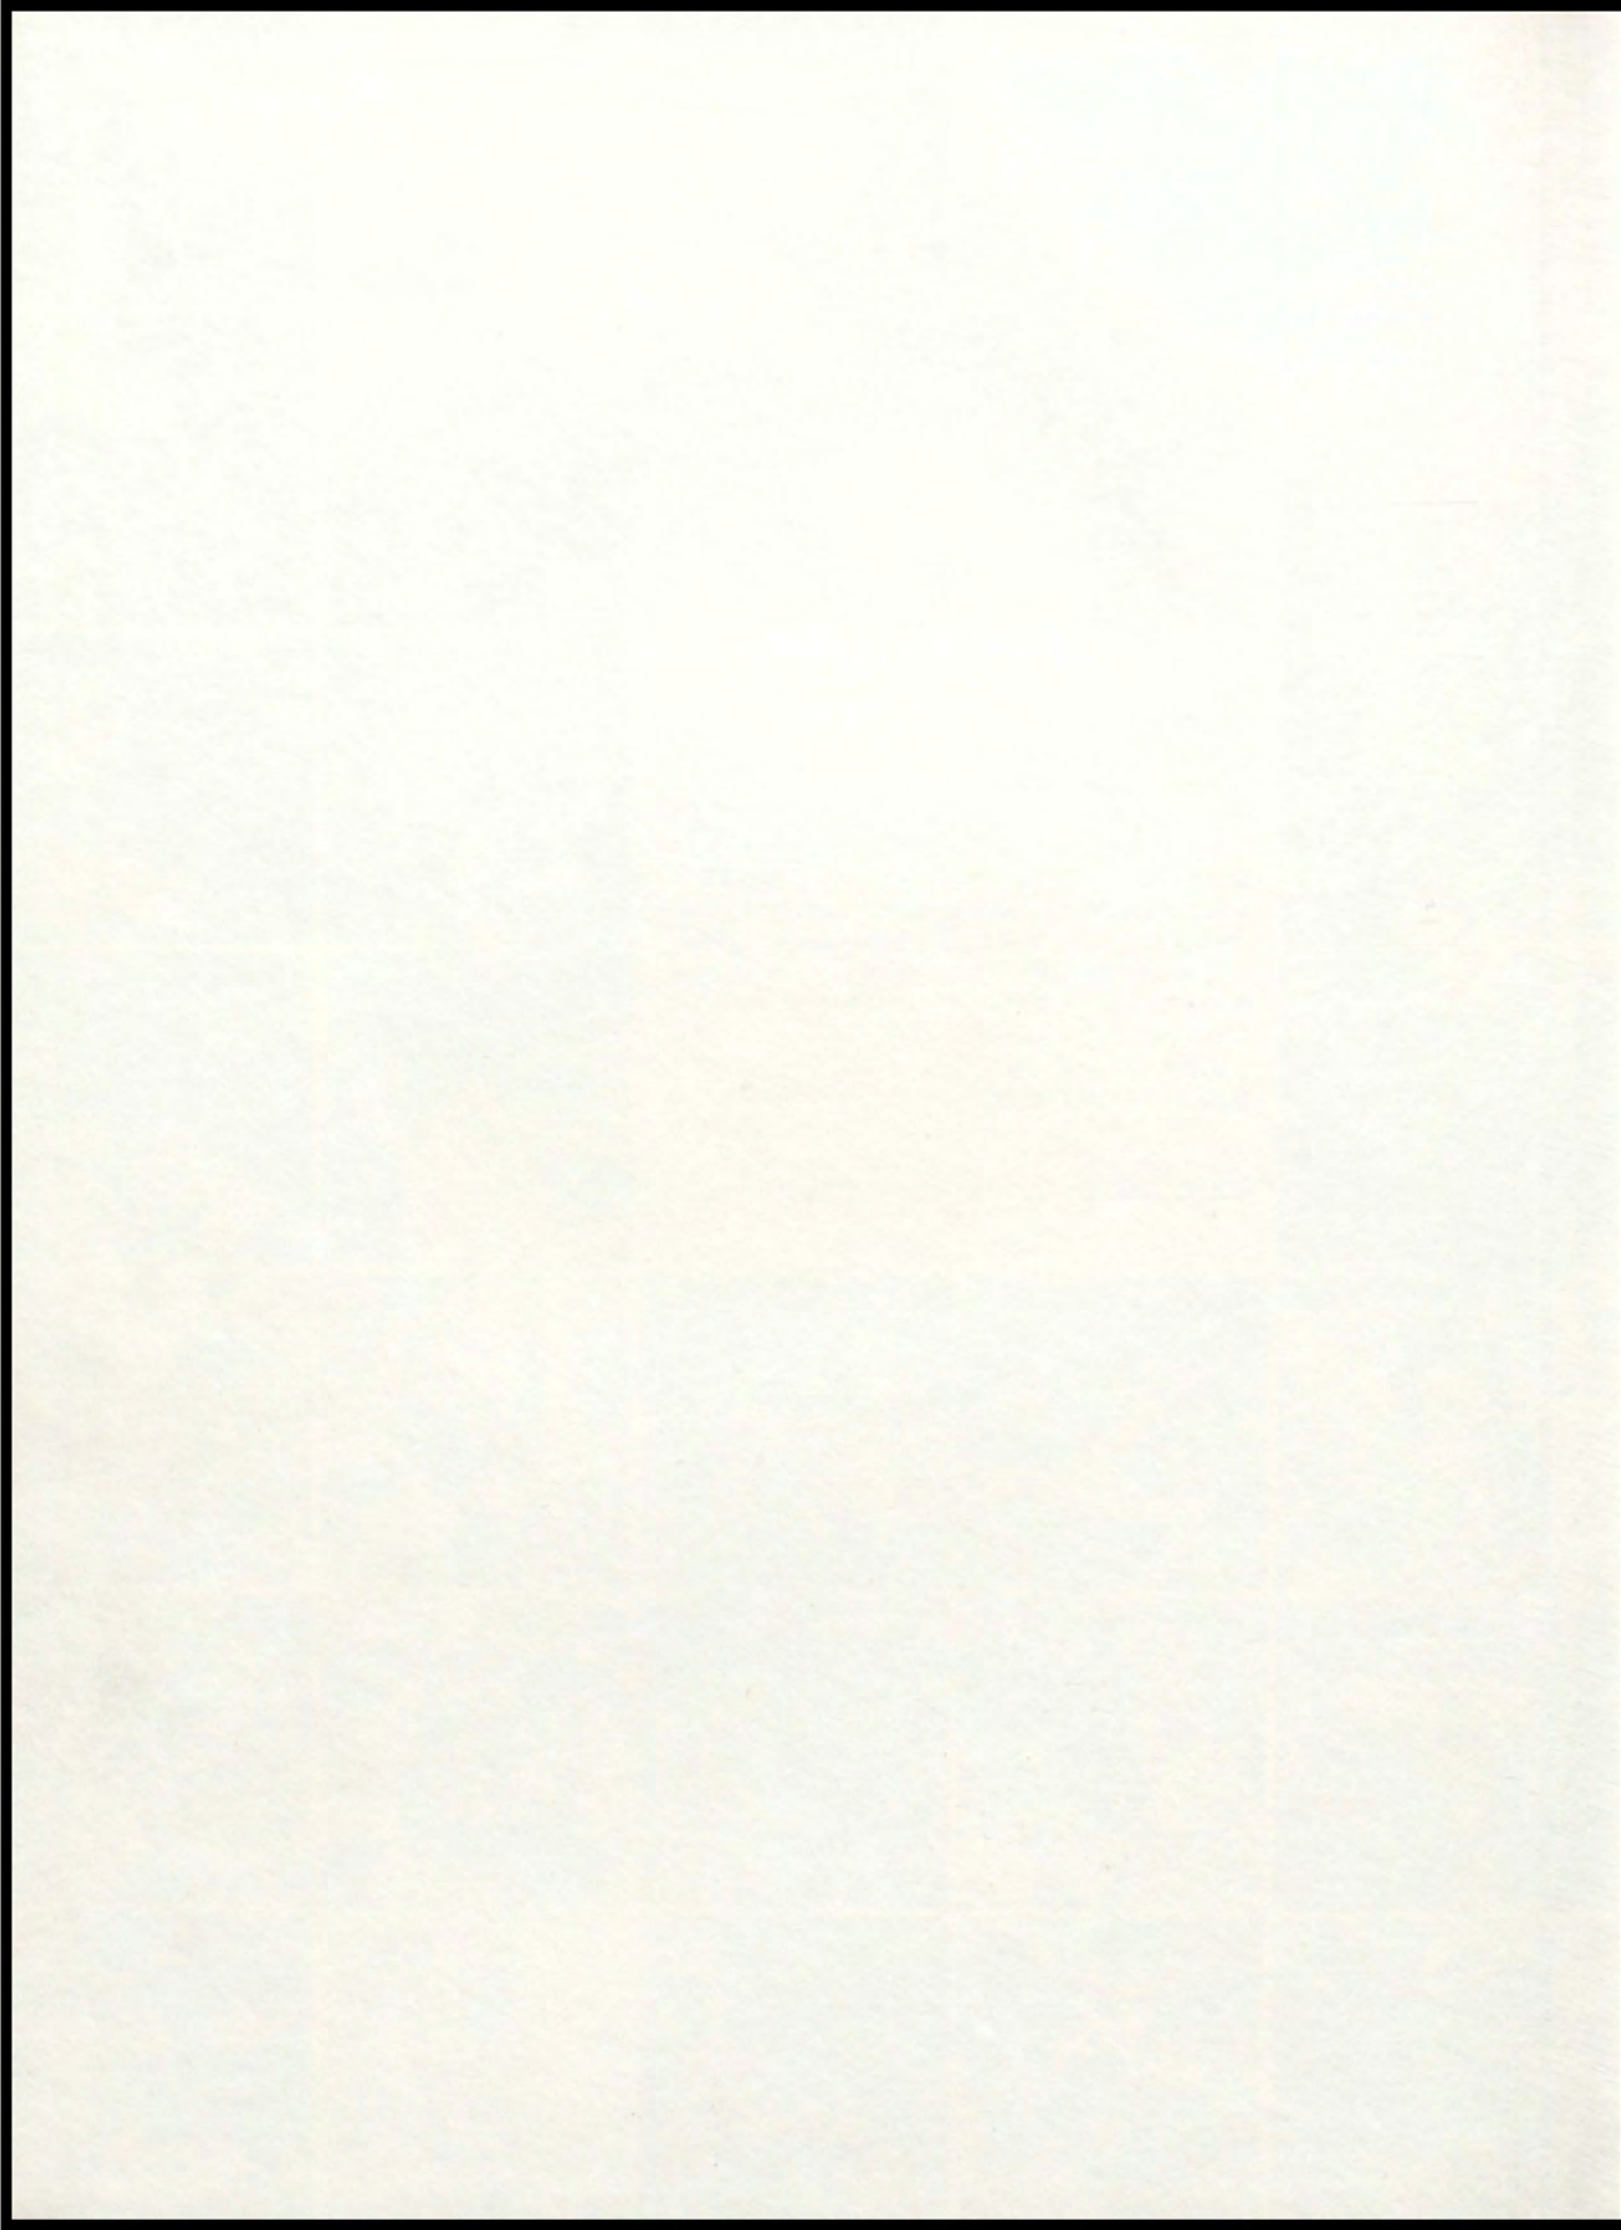

Whether you were working or playing, studying or relaxing, competing or entertaining, practicing or performing, we hope that in reading this, the 1989 Viking, you have found the mark that you made on CHS this year. Included in these few pages we have tried to cover all aspects of student life from the classes you attended, the games you played, the ways you entertained yourselves and the community, the breaks you enjoyed, the styles you wore, and the world around you. When you go back through these pages in the future, we think that you will see that you and everyone else at CHS truly made a mark.

Happy reading and remembering, THE VIKING STAFF
